ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A password input table creating method for creating a password input table referred to when inputting a password in a computer includes a step of displaying on a display a creation table having multiple entry fields each of which is to be an input area for one character, a step of entering, in the entry field of the creation table, each of characters composing a password to be inputted into the computer through an interactive process, a step of creating a password input table by randomly entering possible characters to be used for a password in entry fields of the creation table which have no character inputted therein, and a step of outputting the created password input table.